

FREE RANGE 2007

at the Old Truman Brewery

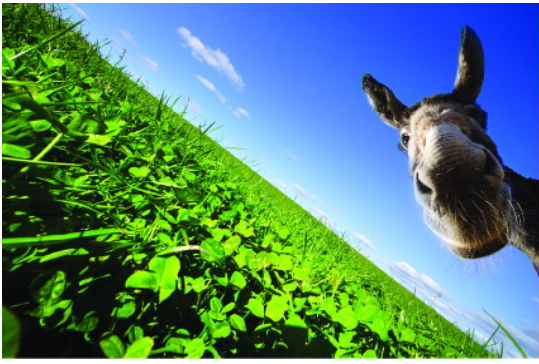

31 May – 23 July www.free-range.org.uk
Opening Nights: Thursdays 6pm-10pm and Show Days: Friday - Mondays
10am-7pm
Closed: Tuesdays and Wednesdays

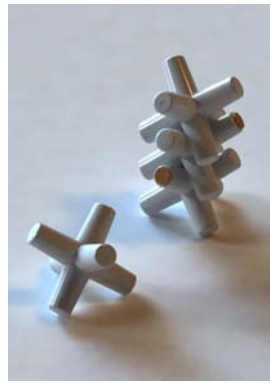

Want to find the next big name in art? Follow the example of the most savvy art collectors and browse Free Range during June and July 2007...

Free Range is the Europe's largest graduate showcase of over 2,500 art and design students from 60 of the UK's top Universities nationwide. Situated at the Old Truman Brewery in East London's Brick Lane, there is something for everyone – all the artistic disciplines are covered, including art, design, photography, interiors, textiles and product design. Best of all, its free admission!

4

5

6

Over the past seven years, the show has become so popular with art lovers, employers, Universities, students and the media that, during June and July, it takes up all the available space at the Old Truman Brewery's huge 11 acre site. Last year's visitor numbers exceeded 100,000, putting Free Range in the same league as the major London art shows.

Free Range Founder & Manager, Tamsin O' Hanlon says, "Free Range is an explosion of talent on a massive scale. This is the best opportunity for industry players and the general public to discover artists in fledgling mode before reputations and prices soar!"

7

8

9

10

11

12

Time Out magazine describes the Old Truman Brewery as 'the creative hub of the East End' with its ten years of sensitive regeneration and investment. This vibrant venue is now considered to be a destination point in its own right.

For press & images contact Alison Johnson on 07976 529 853 or press@trumanbrewery.com
The Old Truman Brewery, 91 Brick Lane, London E1 6QL 020 7770 6100

